and give it a suitable title.

The one thing that is at the root of all evils in India is the condition of the poor. The poor in the west are devils; compared with them ours are angels; and it is therefore so much the easier to raise our poor. The only service to be done for our lower classes is to give them education, to develop their lost individuality. Up to now nothing has been done in that direction. Priest-power and foreign conquest have trodden them down for centuries, and at last the poor of India have forgotten that they are human beings. They are to be given ideas; their eyes are to be opened to what is going on in the world around them, and then they will work out their own salvation. Every nation, every man, every woman, everyone must work out his own salvation. Give them ideas- that is the only help they require, and then the rest must follow as the effect. Our duty is to put ideas into their heads, they will do the rest. That is what is to be done in India. The great difficulty in the way of educating the poor is this. Even if a free school is opened in every village, it would do no good, for the poverty in India is such, that the poor boys would rather go to help their fathers in the fields, or otherwise try to make a living, than come to the school.
